

THE BAD GIFT

By Woodrow Wilcox

Suppose some people wanted to impress you. They wanted you to think of them as your friends.

One day, they appear at your door with a present. It is a bit over $700. You ask why they want to give you this present. They tell you because they want to be your friends and they want you to like them. So, you accept the present. You think that they are really nice and you are glad to have them as friends.

Then, the next day, two police officers appear at your door. They tell you that the people who gave you the gift of over $700 got the money by robbing every elderly person at a senior citizen center luncheon.

Do you think that could happen? Well, something very similar to that happened in March 2010.

When the Obamacare law was passed, over $700 billion dollars of Medicare benefits was taken from America's senior citizens and spent on other things like hiring more Internal Revenue Service agents.

This fact was not very well publicized. In fact, the exact figure was not known.

In an interview on CNBC, Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi admitted that she knew that over half a trillion dollars of Medicare benefits was taken from senior citizens by the Obamacare bill. In July 2012, the Government Accounting Office released the results of a two year study of the Obamacare law and declared that it reduced Medicare benefits for seniors by over SEVEN HUNDRED BILLION DOLLARS.

Is it every right to rob senior citizens to get money to give to others?

I don't believe it is. Too bad Nancy Pelosi and her friends in Congress think otherwise.
